HELEN AMBROZIK

"Blondie"

Business School

Archery (2,4); Basketball (2); Bowling (4); Class Color Committee (4).

"Blondie" appears to be a quiet, reserved, young lady—always willing to work—a factor which is responsible for her many true friends. When Helen, whose company is always welcome, is with her friends, there is never a dull moment During her four years in high school, "Blondie" always had a winning smile, one for which she will be remembered. Keep it up, "Blondie," for a smile will go a long way.

LAWRENCE ANDERSON

"Cookie"

University of New Hampshire

Band (1, 2, 3, 4); Orchestra (4).

The Franklin School sent us "Cookie," who is a bashful but likeable fellow. Inevitably he greets you with a very pleasant grin. In fact, his friends find that he possesses a delightful sense of humor. His high school activities have been in the realm of music, and his achievements in this field will be welcome at New Hampshire University.

MILDRED EVELYN ANDRUSS

"Millie"

Portia Law School

Library Staff (4); Inter Nos Club (3); Candy Committee (4); Class Day Dinner Committee (4).

"Millie" started her school days with us in her Junior Year, coming here from the Immaculate Conception School in Malden. "Millie" was not long in getting acquainted, and she knew the "art" of keeping friends. She has a reserved nature and little to say. If "Millie" expects to be a lawyer, however, she'll have to learn to talk. We know you'll find law interesting and hope you live up to our expectations, Mildred.

GEORGE E. ANTUNES, Jr.

"Georgie"

Undecided

Senior Play Cast (4); Yearbook Staff (4).

Some people are endowed with the ability to work quietly and pleasantly and one of those persons is "Georgie." In his earnestness, he has acquired the friendship of a great many of his classmates. Aside from his work, George has a marvelous sense of humor. His jovial personality and tenacity will make him a success in whatever calling he chooses.

What Next?

We are approaching the close of another school year. For some of us, our tasks are over for a while, but others will face new duties. Many of us have looked ahead to Commencement, that event which means the beginning of new experiences in our lives. After Commencement we shall have to meet the important question, "What next?" Some of our classmates will go to college, others will enter the business world, but many of us will be in doubt. As we gaze into the future, we wonder just what is before us. Time alone can make known the events which will shape themselves and our lives and characters. Experience is said to be the best teacher. This seems to be true in every respect and in all stages of life. Intelligence is always helpful, but through experience one appreciates the meaning of what one has studied.

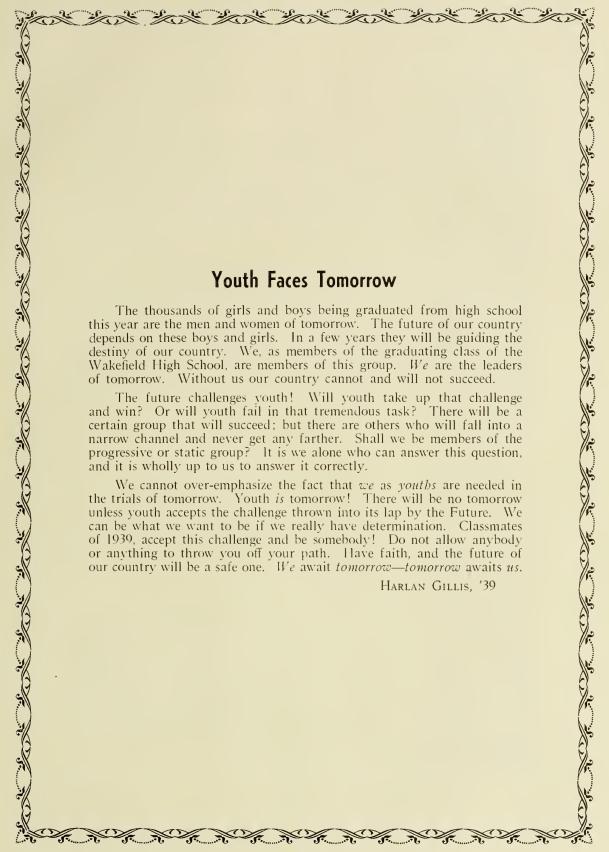

We cannot see what will happen in the future, but we can always look on those things of the past and see where we have made our mistakes, and by what we have profited. Experience, therefore, makes one self-confident in his particular field of work. Thus, experience leaves an example for the following generation to exemplify. All that ever bas been accomplished and all that ever will be accomplished is through hard work and experience.

RITA PETERSON, '39

The Builders of The Class of 1939

With the graduation of the Class of 1939 from Wakefield High School, one chapter in the lives of the students will be completed. Soon another chapter will begin. Our high school experiences have led us to the first paragraph of this new unit. Our school and our teachers have done their best to furnish us with a good background. The old parable states that the house which weathers the storms successfully is built on a firm foundation of rock. Our schooling, our friendships, and our knowledge derived from our high-school days constitute a firm footing. It is for us to build our lives on this solid base. We must profit by what we have learned, and we must create our "houses" in a manner which will be worthy of their splendid foundations. "We Can, We Shall, We Will."

Virginia Schulman, '39

JOSEPH BERNABEO

"Ben"

School of Aviation

Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Band Concert Usher (4).

Here's a serious lad, who, although of a reserved nature, likes to argue on subjects of present day affairs and has taken winning sides on various debates. Another hobby is the candid camera, with which he has snapped interesting, as well as humorous, angles of his classmates. He is greatly interested in aviation and has hopes of entering that field in the near future. In years to come we may hear of him as an "Ace" in aviation. We wish you success and hope your plans come true, "Ben."

DOROTHY BEYEA

"Dot"

Business School

Tennis (1, 2, 3, 4); Archery (2, 3); Glee Club (2, 3); Bowling (2, 3, 4); Field Hockey (2, 4); Inter Nos (3, 4); Senior Play Executive Committee (4).

Greenwood contributed "Dot" to our class. Her excellent school work and her love for sports have helped to make her a leader of her class. Anything you want to know—except the time buses run—just ask "Dot". We know one thing, that she will be accepted gladly at whatever business school she chooses.

HOWARD BEZANSON

"Beza"

Tufts School of Architecture Hi-Y Club (3); Class Color Committee (4).

Howard entered Wakefield High School from the Lynnfield Center Grammar School. He represents the "tall, light, and quiet" type of individual. An unassuming nature and a quaint sense of humor rank him high in the opinions of his fellow classmates. Howard intends to enter Tufts School of Architecture, where a promising field of endeavor awaits him.

LOIS ELAINE BISHOP

"Lo"

Massachusetts School of Art

Senior Play Candy Committee (4).

The Hurd School sent us "Lo," one of the prettiest and merriest girls of our class. She began her art at a very early age, when, at the Hurd School, she drew her first picture of a teacher. She certainly has improved since then, according to people who have seen her work. We know her love of art and skillful hands will win an enviable place for her in the world.

Foreword

The editors offer this edition of The Oracle to the Class of 1939 in the hope that it may commemorate four happy years spent in Wakefield High School. We also wish to express our gratitude to Miss Bernice Caswell. Head of the English Department, without whose generous assistance this Yearbook would not have been published; to our classmates for their cooperation in making this book a success; and to the Staff typists under the efficient leadership of Miss Alice Ryan.

Our class motto, "We Can, We Shall, We Will," is the theme upon which this book is based. Dividing the book into three sections, we have placed the outstanding achievements—not only those of our class but also those of the underclassmen—under "We Can." Under "We Shall" we have set forth our views, ideals, and hopes toward the future. Our determination to conquer all obstacles and pitfalls which may beset our road through life is expressed in the third section of our motto, "We Will."

The Staff of The Oracle has worked diligently to depict as accurately as possible the activities of the Wakefield High School students during the past four years. We trust that our efforts will gain the approbation of all readers and serve as a worthy symbol of the high ambitions of the Class of 1939.

Margaret Dower, '39

An Announcement

The editors sincerely hope that this edition of The Oracle will serve as a pleasant reminder of the past four years. We have included the outstanding achievements of the school, as well as the literary efforts of the Seniors.

The book is divided into three sections corresponding to the three divisions of the class motto: "We Can, We Shall, We Will." Under the first division we have recorded our past achievements; under the second, our hopes for the future; and under the third, our definite plans.

You, fellow classmates, are the judges of our Yearbook. If it is what you want, all our efforts will be amply rewarded.

"Forsan et haec olim meminisse juvabit."

Roy Turnquist, '39

"Bunny"

Chamberlain

Bowling (4); Cheerleader (4); Senior Play Property Committee (4); Junior Prom Committee (3); Football Dance Committee (4).

"Bunny," one of the most popular girls in the class, is a graduate of the Hurd School. Her sense of humor and delight in having good times have kept her constantly in the midst of our social activities. As a cheerleader, "Bunny" did much to rouse our class spirit and win staunch supporters for the team. Her charming personality will assist in making her future interesting.

JOHN M. BAGNELL

"Baggie"

Undecided

Class Will (4).

Since this is John's first year at Wakefield High, he was unable to participate in many school activities. Although the teachers may not approve all of John's comments, at least the remarks have the desired effect upon his classmates. He is studious, and he should accomplish much in his chosen profession.

HARRY BARRON

"Ball Barron"

Bentley School of Accounting

Track (1); 11i-Y Club (2, 3, 4); Glee Club (2, 3); Class Day Usher (3); Cheerleader (4).

There is always happiness about when one is in the company of Harry. He is ever jolly, and his jokes and puns are seldom exhausted. When it comes to his work in school, however, Harry can be one of the most serious. We'll hire you to examine our books, Harry.

ARTHUR BEANE

"Art"

Undecided

Football (1); Dinner Committee (4).

"Art" entered Wakefield High School from St. Joseph's School. Although he has not had time to participate in many school activities because of other interests in Reading, he has many friends here. "Art" is the strong, silent type. Perhaps this is the reason for his popularity with the gentler sex. We know that he will find employment that will be worthy of his ability. By the way, "Art," why don't you open a matrimonial bureau?

PRISCILLA BEEBE

"P. M."

Bradford Junior College

Inter Nos Club (2, 3); Senior Party Committee (4); Junior Prom Committee (3); Archery (3); Skiing (3).

"P. M." is adequate proof of that trite, but true statement: "Good things come in small packages." During four years at Wakefield High School, she has become both well known and popular. Incidentally, she is one of the best-dressed girls in the class. With this combination of desirable qualities, "P. M." is sure to succeed at Bradford.

WINSOR II. BEEBE

"Beaver"

Deerfield Academy

Football (1, 2, 3, 4); Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Baseball (1); Chairman Senior Play Stage Crew (4); Tennis (2, 4); Track (3, 4).

"Beaver," as a Hurd School alumnus, is undoubtedly one of the most prominent members of our class. His amiable disposition and obliging manner have made him well liked throughout the school. Although active in all sports, he is an outstanding basketball player known to be one of the steadiest players in the league. As head of the stage crew for the Senior Play, Winsor was largely responsible for the smooth running of the performances. His willing attitude and his magnetic personality will make him a favorite at Deerfield.

JANE BEHNKE

"Eloise"

Wellesley College

Glee Club (2); Basketball (2); Riding (2); Archery (3, 4); Tennis (4); Inter Nos Club (2, 3, 4); Field Hockey (2); Bowling (3, 4); Golf (4); Winter Sports (4).

A hop, a skip, and a jump, and who should land in the midst of us, but "Eloise," one of the sweetest and brightest girls of our class. Jane's cleverness, however, does not desert her when she leaves the classroom, for she keeps everybody in stitches with her never-ending quips. Wellesley College will be proud to send her forth into the world as one of its graduates.

CATHERINE BENEDETTO

"Kav"

Simmons College

Senior Play Candy Committee (4).

This young lady with her vivacious smile is one of our unobtrusive classmates, but beneath her shyness is hidden a wealth of fun. She goes about her work diligently and quietly. She doesn't make friends too quickly, but once you become her friend, you remain so. "Kay" will be a popular girl at Simmons College.

ROBERT BURNS MACKENNA, Jr.

"Mac" is the more corpulent member of the popular "MacKenna-Cochran" combination, which has been responsible for much of the hilarity in Wakefield High School during the past four years. As captain of the football team, he aided his team mates in gaining many victories. He has won recognition in all the sports in which he has participated. "Mac" or "Bob" or "Red Dog"-revealed his acting ability when he so capably took the big brother part in the Senior Play. "Mac' is really absorbed in his music; he plays the tuba in the orchestra and the band. As our Class President for two years, he has worked hard and achieved much. The Class of 1939 appreciates his efforts!

ADAM HERRON

"Eddie" Undecided Football (2, 3, 4); Intramural Baseball (2, 3); Vice President (3, 4); Senior Play Committee (4); Intramural Basketball (2, 3); Hi-Y Club (2, 3).

"Eddie," our efficient Vice President, is known by every-one in the Class of 1939. He is best described as a humorous, friendly fellow with a wonderful personality. He excelled in football, accomplishing outstanding work in every game. A native of Lynnfield, he has found his place among the most popular members of our class. Although "Eddie" is still undecided about his future, we are sure that he will find something promising.

SHIRLEY CRAIN

"Sbirl" Secretarial School Inter Nos Club (2, 4); Glee Club (2, 3, 4); Class Secretary (4); Co-Chairman Candy Committee, Senior Play (4); Yearbook Staff (4).

"Shirl" is a Greenwood "lassie" whose lovable personality appeals to classmates and teachers. Her work as co-chairman of the candy committee for the Senior Play was an important factor in the success of that venture. Since she is a very attractive girl, Shirley has conquered many masculine hearts. We wish you luck in whatever secretarial school you enter

HOWARD JAMES MURPHY

"Murf" Art School Class Treasurer (4); Cross Country (2); Interclass Football (4); Senior Play Cast (4); Senior Play Publicity Committee (4); Yearbook Staff (4); Interclass Basketball (2); Track (1); Hi-Y Club (2, 4).

RICHARD BOLAND

"Dick" Kent's Hill Preparatory School Junior Prom Committee (3); Assistant Football Manager (4).

"Dick" can be found wherever there is fun to be had. He is one of the cut-ups of our class who often meet with persistent calls from the office. He is well liked by all because of his carefree easy-going nature. His laugh is so infectious that he makes us all join. "Dick" was assistant manager of this year's football team and capably filled that position. Besides being full of fun, he is an industrious and faithful worker. Good luck, "Dickie"—you deserve it.

LEO BONFANTI

"Lee" Kent's Hill Preparatory School

(2, 3); Track (1, 2, 3, 4); Football (1, 2, 3, 4);
Glee Club (2, 3); Ring Committee (3); Senior Play Stage Crew (4).

Upon entering Wakefield High School, I eo continued a sporting career begun in primary days, and is now one of our most versatile athletes. In football, Leo's steady playing at center did much to give the team the prosperous year it deserved. His wit, personality, and numerous other qualities have gone far in making him a class favorite. We all wish him the best of luck at Kent's Hill.

PRISCILLA BOURDON

"Pilly" Bradford Junior College
Junior Prom Committee (3); Inter Nos Club (2, 3); Archery (3); Senior Play Wardrobe Committee (4).

What girl has not envied "Pilly" her beautiful blonde hair and attractive clothes? Coming from the Warren School, she brought besides her inherent sense of style, a personality which, although quiet, "wears" exceedingly well. "Pilly" will be designing our clothes before long, and meanwhile we hope she'll enjoy Bradford Junior College.

SHIRLEY BRANNON

"Shirl"

Basketball (2); Glee Club (2); Horseback Riding (2); Bowling (4); Senior Play Candy Committee (4); Yearbook Staff (4); Dean's Office (4).

Shirley's charming manner has gained her many friends since she came to Wakefield High from the Lynnfield Grammar School. Her sense of humor and merry disposition are some of the qualities which make her an interesting companion. She is fond of horseback riding and rides remarkably well. She knows instinctively just what clothes to wear and how to wear them. If her high school career is any indication of her future success as a secretary, her accomplishments will be noteworthy.

NORMAN W. BROWN

"Brownie"

Undecided

Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Day Usher (3); Stage Crew for Senior Play (4).

"Brownie" is an energetic young fellow from Greenwood. Although he hasn't had much chance to participate in class activities because he works after school, he puts his heart and soul into whatever he undertakes. We are sure that he will

RUTH A. BUCHAN

"Toots"

Undecided

Bowling (1, 2); Basketball (1, 2).

Ruth is another member of our class who prepared for high school in Greenwood. She is sweet, gracious, and petite, thus proving the adage, "Big oaks from little acorns grow." Her artistic ability has been the envy of many of her classmates. She is friendly and cordial, as well as co-operative. Although "Toots" is undecided about her future work, we feel certain that it will be pleasant.

"Kelley"

"Kelley" is not only one of the most versatile, but is also one of the liveliest, members of our class. Her fun-loving nature and ready laugh have kept her teachers guessing for the past four years. She has held a permanent position on that exclusive scroll known as the Honor Roll. Her brilliant accompaniment for the orchestra has proved a source of pleasure for Mr. Fanck. We wager she'll be tops at Jackson!

NORMAN BURWEN

You may be of the impression that "Norm" is of the studious type, but you will find him witty and original. "Norm's" activities in school favor the musical groups, but he has also participated in our social functions. He has been in the Ili-Y Club four years and was elected vice president this year. He plans to go to North Carolina for his college career, and our best wishes go with him.

ELEANOR BUTLER

"Ronnie" Wilfed Academy

Senior Play Candy and Usher Committee (4).

Anyone who wants to laugh can depend on "Ronnie" for one. Ah! What wit that girl displays. Her genial personality has won her a host of friends. To "Ronnie" the class of 1939 gives its best wishes for a promising career.

ARTHUR CALVO

"Scuff" Kent's Hill
Football (1, 2, 3, 4); Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Baseball (1, 2, 3); Senior Party Committee (4); Football Dance Committee (4)

Perhaps "Art" could be best termed as being ready and willing. He is as active as they come and always "raring to go." There is no faster or shiftier member of either the football or basketball team, nor is there a more dependable man. With his sense of humor and his delightful personality. "Art" can't help being a success.

MARY CLAIRE CAMBARERI

"Marty" Salem Teachers' College
Class Color Committee (3); Candy and Usher
Committee (4); Inter Nos Club (4).

"Il'es"

Massachusetts State College
Band (1, 2, 3, 4); Orchestra (2, 3, 4); Class Treasurer (3); Hi-Y Club (2, 3, 4); Baseball (1);
Cross Country (2); Yearbook Staff (4); Spectator Staff (3).

"Wes" has applied himself diligently not only to his studies, but also to social affairs. He is very much interested in athletics, social events, and any good time that is available. "Wes" should become a good banker after attending Massachusetts State College.

GARDNER CAMPBELL, Jr.

"Soup"

Northeastern University
Hi-Y (1, 2, 3); Senior Play Cast (4); Senior
Play Publicity Committee (4); Hi-Y Spectator
Staff (3).

Of course everybody knows "Soup"—he's the fellow who rendered such wonderful piano playing in the Senior Play. Ever since the eighth-grade days in the Hurd School, his many friends have been saying "Play the piano for us, Soup." He plans to go to Northeastern, and it is evident that he will be successful whether he specializes in business or in journalism. We're loyal rooters for you, "Soup."

BARBARA CARLETON

Tennis (1); Field Hockey (2); Archery (2);
Bowling (2, 3, 4); Girls' Glee Club (2, 3, 4);

"Barb" appeared from Greenwood and she is certainly a good representative of that section of the town. Her smiling face indicates a cheerful nature, and her love of sports and good scholastic record make her an accomplished girl. We hope your future in the business world will be as astonishing as your Wakefield High School career. "Barb."

ALICE CHEEVER

"Al" Stenographer
Tennis (2): Bowling (2, 3, 4): Inter Nos (2, 3);

Tennis (2); Bowling (2, 3, 4); Inter Nos (2, 3); Candy Committee Senior Play (4).

Alice is a graduate of the Greenwood School. Although she is one of the shyer members of the Senior class, she is popular with her classmates. "Al" has participated in a few of our sports, but bowling was her favorite, as anyone could see by glancing at her scores. She plans to be a stenographer, a position for which she is well qualified.

ROBERT B. CHEYNE

"Bob"

Undecided

Class Day Usher (3); Hi-Y (2, 3, 4); Hi-Y President (4); Track (3); Senior Play Committee (4); Interclass Football (2, 3); Interclass Basketball (3).

"Bob" has certainly made himself known as an efficient Hi-Y leader in Wakefield High. Not only is he a good executive, but also a serious reader; in fact, he reads everything he gets his hands on. Nevertheless, he does not allow this to detract from the outside pleasures he pursues. It is surprising that a fellow can do so much and still be at the top in scholastic standing. "Bob" never needs to fear for the future.

EDITH V. CHRISTENSON

"Edie"

Stenographer

Basketball (2, 3, 4); Baseball (2, 3, 4); Track (2); Archery (2, 3, 4); Senior Play Candy Committee (4); Badminton (3).

"Edie" is another of those lively lassies from Greenwood who are happy only when trouble is brewing. On the basketball floor her effective guarding has demonstrated to enterprising forwards that she is the star. If she puts half the energy into the profession that she has exhibited in basketball (and we know that she will), she'll command top price as secretary.

HENRY EDWARD CLAY

"Muscles"

Business School

Golf (2, 3, 4); Hi-Y (3).

We've finally found out what a golf ball thinks while sitting on a tee waiting for the club. "So this is Henry, eh? Captain of the school golf team, hm-m-m. Fairly short, but he carries himself with assurance. A pleasant looking lad; guess he'll get along without much trouble. All set, Henry—here it comes! Whiz-z-z. Oh!—he missed!"

ANTONIO JOHN COCCORO

"Tony"

Agriculturist

Gymnastic Exhibition (3); Glee Club (4); Band (1, 2, 3, 4); Football (2, 3, 4).

You can see for yourself that "Tony" has been an eager participant in Wakefield High activities. Our star left tackle, who came to us from the Franklin School, is popular with his associates in sports. His willingness to work and his obliging nature will help him in making more friends in the future.

ARNOLD MAYNARD COCHRAN

"Arny"

Baseball (2, 3, 4); Basketball (2, 3, 4); Cross Country (2); Junior Prom Committee (3); Senior Play Committee (4); Senior Play Cast (4); Interclass Football (2, 3); Cheerleader (3).

"Arny" is without doubt one of the most popular boys in our class. He has taken an active part in sports, especially baseball and basketball. He climaxed his high school career by his portrayal of the part of "Willie" in the Senior Play. "Arny" has served on committees, attended school functions, and has done his share of club work. Although his prospective college is still in doubt, we "Bet-sy" makes a success of himself at whatever school he chooses to attend.

CATHERINE COLLINS

"Cathy"

Secretary

College

Civics Club (1, 2); Field Hockey (2); Senior Play Candy Committee (4); Track (2).

"Efficient" is the word that best describes "Cathy". She has proved her capability by satisfactorily completing each task she has undertaken. Her determination to succeed has been made evident by her high scholastic standing obtained by hard work. However, her high school career has not been all work, as she has participated in sports and social affairs. She is, indeed, a true member of our class.

JOHN COLLINS

"Iohnny"

Engineering School

Class Color Committee (3).

All great scientists have shown their particular ability when young. "Johnny" tells us that he wants to attend an engineering school. We know he must have ability to do mechanical engineering work because he draws clever pictures of many things. "Johnny" is especially fascinating because he can talk out of the side of his mouth and still make himself understood! Keep it up, "Johnny", and you'll be famous; then we'll be able to say, "Remember John Collins?"

WILLIAM COLLINS

"Bill"

Bentley School of Accounting Glee Club (3, 4).

"Bill" is the original "happy-go-lucky" fellow who has a smile for everyone. Although he has not participated to a great extent in school activities, he is noted for his goodnatured attitude and carefree manner toward duties which are his. With these assets, we know he will succeed in the business world. Don't let us down, "Bill"!

CHARLES J. CONFALONE

"Charlie", one of Wakefield High's most versatile men, has been a highlight in the field of sports. As a varsity man on the football team, he has been a tower of strength. When the team is in a tight spot, the cry is always, "We want Confalone"! That he is versatile, too, is proved by his many activities.

MARY ELLEN CONFALONE

"May"

Boston University

Inter Nos Club (4); Senior Play Candy Committee (4); Senior Play Usher (4).

"May" is one of the more reserved girls in our class. Her earnest and conscientious efforts have won her recognition in the class room. "May's" bright, flashing smile endears her to all who know her, and we are sure that it will be a guide to her popularity at Boston University.

ELEANOR CORBETT

"Ellie"

Airline Hostess

Glee Club (2, 3); Candy Committee (4); Tennis (2, 4); Hockey (2); Inter Nos Club (2); Bowling (2).

"Ellie" is a young lady with a charming personality and a rather candid sense of humor which has won her many friends. Incidentally, "Ellie" usually gets her man! During her career as airline hostess, we hope she is never forced to use a parachute; and we sincerely wish her many happy landings.

GORDON LEROY CORBETT

"Lum"

College

Glee Club (2, 3, 4).

Gordon is one of our taciturn students. A certain drollness and a keen sense of humor endear him to teachers and classmates. He has carried a heavy program of studies and work, yet has found time to aid worthy class activities. All who are acquainted with his integrity hold him in high esteem. He displays unusual aptitude for the ministry; in fact, we look forward to his success in this field of endeavor.

SERENA JANET CORINDIA

"Sarah" Boston University
Senior Play Candy Committee (4); Motto Com-

Senior Play Candy Committee (4); Motto Committee (3).

Serena is a quiet, unassuming lass from the Lincoln School. "Sarah's" motto is "Business before pleasure", and that fact accounts for her excellent school record. Her name is familiar to those who read the Honor Roll. Serena hopes to attend Boston University, where we know she will take as much interest in her studies as she has shown in high school.

ELIZABETH COSTELLO

"Betty" Salem Teachers' College

Inter Nos Club (3, 4); Inter Nos Club Treasurer (4); Dean's Office (4); Basketball (2, 4); Bowling (3); Archery (3, 4); Class Ring and Pin Committee (3).

"Betty's" numerous high school activities are all indications of her ability to assume any responsibility which is given to her. Her elementary education was obtained at St. Joseph's School. She is an interesting conversationalist and possesses a pleasing personality. She enjoys a good time and adds to the gaiety of any gathering. Her laugh (or perhaps it's a giggle) reveals her never-failing sense of humor, which will be an asset to her as a teacher.

ALICE COTTREAU

"Al" Eliot and Fisher Machine School
Senior Play Candy Committee (4).

"Al" is one of the most charming girls ever to be graduated from the Warren School. Although she has not participated in many activities, she has made many friends. He'll make a despicable husband for a loving wife, but "Webby" is taking no chances—he is going to be a lawyer. From the youngster who used to play football at the Hurd School to the tall, handsome student of Wakefield High School is a long way—but "Web" has won admiration throughout his career.

We wish him luck at Brown University.

Hockey (4); Interclass Football (3); Interclass Basketball (2); Senior Play Committee (4).

"Bob" is a friend to everyone and is the cause of many a feminine heart's pounding louder than normal. Perhaps one reason for this is the way in which he rolls his eyes. Whether or not he is conscious of the fact, we don't know; but it's dangerous business, "Bob", when there are members of the opposite sex around. As one of our star hockey players, he has proved himself clever at shooting the puck He plans to enter the business world, and if he's as good at figures as "they say" he is, he'll be sitting behind a desk in no time. Inter Nos Club — 1938-1939

The year 1938-39 has been an enjoyable one for the Inter Nos Club. The program included the following: an opening meeting for all girls who desired to hear Mrs. Margaret Eggleston Owen; a demonstration of the art of making Christmas cards and decorations; an interesting talk on "Boy and Girl Relationships"; a meeting with the Hi-Y Boys; and also a tea dance. Since this school year marked the tenth anniversary of the Inter Nos Club, an interesting meeting was held, during which the alumnae provided the entertainment and extended their best wishes. "To create school spirit and intellectually broaden the vision of each girl in Wakefield High School," the club's purpose, was successfully carried out under the sponsorship of Miss Helen Gilmore, Dean of Girls.

During the able administration of President Robert Cheyne, the Hi-Y Club has enjoyed a particularly active and successful season. The regular weekly meetings held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall were not only entertaining, but decidedly educational in many respects.

Some of the outstanding activities in the course of the year were the annual Christmas Dance, which was a brilliant affair conducted at the Bear Hill Golf Club; a Christmas Party for the benefit of under-privileged children; the Faculty Night banquet; Mothers' and Sons' night; and a most successful Spring Dance.

The members of the Hi-Y Club are indebted to Mr. Lewis P. Lindsay, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who, by his support and cooperation, assisted not a little in the furtherance of the yearly program.

The Library Service Club - 1939

This club is a comparatively new organization, having been started last year by Miss Sheldon, our librarian, for the purpose of acquainting the students with library routine. In 1938, it consisted largely of a representative from each home room, but this year the privilege of joining the club was given to any student who wished library training. There are, however, certain requirements in scholarship and deportment which must be met by all candidates for membership in this organization. Each library assistant during his respective period has full charge of the desk, of recording all book traffic, of checking magazines, of keeping the bookshelves in order, and of countersigning library slips. In fact, the club has proved to be one of the most valuable organizations in Wakefield High School.

Track Team — 1938

The Wakefield High School Track Team began its determined but unsuccessful fight with its only victory of the year. The team fought all the way and was not lacking in practice. However, the majority of the boys were new recruits, and having had no experience with running and field events, naturally lost some games.

While Wakefield High School was far down the list in the Middlesex League Meet, it took third place in the New England Meet and ended its season in the same determined manner with which it began. To Coach Heavens goes the praise for patient and thorough training of the boys.

Girls' Field Hockey - 1939

The coming of the fall term found the girls gathering for another hockey season under the able supervision of Miss Nichols. With a few of last year's stars as a nucleus, Miss Nichols soon whipped the squad into shape for their first game with Reading. This contest proved quite exciting as the Wakefield girls forged ahead in the last half of the game to win, 2—1. Against other and more experienced teams the Wakefield girls acquitted themselves very creditably.

Early in the fall the first team journeyed to Cambridge to participate in a Field Hockey Play-Day. Here the girls received much instruction from several of the leading hockey players in America. The team also made an excellent showing against other teams from surrounding towns. The line-ups follow:

Basketball - 1939

The year 1939 has been the best season for any Wakefield team during the past five years. With the aid of three of last year's lettermen, Coach Homer M. Shellenberger developed a fast team of "green demons" which was feared by all opponents throughout the season. The "green demons" brought the Middlesex League Championship back to Wakefield for the first time since 1934. In winning, the boys were true champions and always gave the fans an exhibition of good basketball and steady team work. The outstanding player of the season, Captain John Conroy, made a total record of 204 points, breaking all previous records.

Under the able guidance of Coach George Fusco, the second team also had a wonderful season. The squad practically kept pace with the first team in the number of games won and lost.

The members of the first team were Captain John Conroy, Winsor Beebe, Minick Martino, Arthur C. "Scoff" Calvo, Charles McManius, Arnie Cochran, Wayne Schumann, Charles Robbins, Andrew Granese, and James Ebling.

Friends of the Class of Nineteen Thirty-nine:

As a representative of the graduating class, it is my privilege to welcome you tonight. We are grateful, indeed, for the willing support that you have given us throughout our school years. This evening, as we take leave of our beloved Alma Mater to strive for some still higher goal, it is our hope that we shall be a credit to the community which has educated us thus far.

Our program of music and speaking will emphasize the timely theme — Toward a Greater America—and will honor those persons who, in our estimation, have aided in building a greater America.

Let us turn back the pages of history and see briefly what has happened in American life. In the colonial days, our hardy forebears were occupied in founding a new country in a savage wilderness. Through their persistent, untiring efforts they conquered the first frontier and pushed on into millions of unclaimed acres in the West. Because of the abundant free soil the country became an agricultural nation with limited opportunities for advancement. But America was not destined to be dominated by agricultural interests.

In a few swift decades steam and steel triumphed over the older ideas. The Industrial Revolution invaded every phase of American life and changed our ways of living and thinking. It offered boundless opportunities for young men by opening new fields of endeavor. It crowded one-half of the people into the cities and put enough machine power into the hands of the farmer to feed the millions engaged in manufacturing.

This great upheaval probably was the most progressive step towards a greater America in our history. Many eminent men will always be associated with the transition, and one of the outstanding is Henry Ford, the man who revolutionized travel.

As Mr. Ford approached the age of forty, he was only a poor mechanic who, as an unfortunate youth, had been lured from his comfortable Michigan home by the hum of industry. Apparently he was just another tinkering worker who thought he saw a future in the horseless carriage. No one ever imagined that the seemingly unfortunate laborer was to become a pioneer in mass production, an industrialist who was to put America on wheels, and a man with a vision of new education for youth.

Ford made a smoky, horseless carriage that lurched forward like a huge frog at each explosion of its two cylinders. So disturbing was it that it brought all the neighbors to their windows. One rainy midnight in April, 1893, the man who had labored three years to perfect his motor car drove the first of sixteen million Fords along a dark street and brought it home under its own power.

With a coal dealer, Malcolmson, as well as Couzens, Gray, and the well known Dodge Brothers for partners, Ford started an industry that was to become a dominating factor in American life and to employ directly more than three and one-half million people. He defied conventional precedents and came with ideas of his own into a rapidly growing industrial world which was crazed with the lust for money. He wanted to produce what the largest possible public would buy at the lowest possible price, and to get the best men by paying the best wages. Humanitarian as well as industrialist, Henry Ford has always aimed "Toward a Greater America," not toward a richer Ford. He ever has been willing to sacrifice his personal profit to better the living conditions of his workmen. By standardizing the automobile, the great industrialist has taken his company into mass production. Each employee can now perfect his skill by specializing in one type of work. By his new ideas Ford has realized his dream of bringing his car within the reach of almost everyone. He has given millions of his countrymen an opportunity to see the America that they had only heard about. Consequently the prairie trails of colonial days have developed into modern highways to meet the flood of automobile traffic. The man who lifted America out of the horse-and-buggy age is still doing his part in advancing this great, powerful, and independent nation. But he now turns to youth for support. "Youth is the dawning future." So speaks Ford. He believes that the nation should offer its youth only the best so that they may choose what they need and take it into the future. His beliefs do not remain idle in his mind; he applies them. His many vocational schools, such as his Greenfield Village and Sudbury Schools, exemplify his educational ideas. Here he teaches useful vocations in his handicraft shops. Besides learning the academic curriculum, pupils get actual practice in working, earning, and spending. Here also the industrialist puts into practice his theory: "Education is not something to prepare you for life. It is a continuous part of life." He believes truly that in the hands of the youth of today is the future of tomorrow. Wars may obstruct it, discontent may discourage it, poverty and need may hinder it, but nothing in creation can stop the forward march of America. There will always be leaders with the vision of Mr. Ford to bear the torch of progress. Upon the youth of today—upon us—rests the obligation of the greater tomorrow!

SERENA JANET CORINDIA, Honor Pupil

The American woman today is definitely a part of education. She has risen from obscurity to a place of prominence in the field of education. She attends college and studies those liberal subjects for which she is best fitted. The American woman realizes, however, that though her college course has introduced her to the world of literature, of philosophy, of science, and of history, she has "but touched the fringes of comprehension" of the world.

Miss Mildred Helen McAfee, President of Wellesley College, is a typical representative of the new woman in education who is making a greater America. After her graduation from Vassar College in 1920, she taught English and French in Monticello Seminary, Illinois, for one year. In 1921, she was assistant in the Francis W. Parker School in Chicago, and the year following was director of girls' work in the Fourth Presbyterian Church in that city. In the year 1923, she went to Tusculum College, Tennessee, as acting professor of economics and sociology. The spring of 1926 found her studying at the University of Chicago, where she received the degree of Master of Arts in 1928. From the summer of 1929 until her appointment as President of Wellesley in 1936, Miss McAfee studied at Chicago and Columbia Universities in addition to fulfilling professional duties.

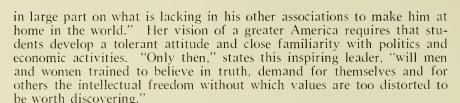

Since her graduation from Vassar, Miss McAfee has had varied experiences in education and social service. She has taught French, English, economics and sociology, the social sciences; she has served on the faculties of a grammar school, a high school for industrial workers, and has directed the activities of the alumnae of her Alma Mater. In addition, she has served as Dean of Women in two colleges—Tusculum and Oberlin.

In selecting a President for Wellesley, the trustees enumerated the necessary qualifications as "intellectual honesty, leadership, tolerance, sympathetic understanding of youth, vision, and a sense of humor." To find these qualities united with experience, scholarship, and executive ability was the arduous task confronting the trustees as they considered more than one hundred applicants. But with the election of Miss McAfee, the ideal was approximated.

Wellesley's new president has a warm, gracious, and engaging manner. She believes in personalizing education, describes herself as a liberal, and opposes the Massachusetts Teachers' Loyalty Oath Bill as an infringement of the constitutional right of free speech. Her sense of humor is illustrated in her statement about Oberlin's excess of girls: "We still don't have enough men to go around, and those who do go around, go around too much."

Personalizing education is one of the aims of Miss McAfee. Because of the growing participation of women in national and international problems, she is interested in the place and the function of the independent woman's college. She wants to see the individual student as the primary center of education. To quote Miss McAfee: "In this age of increasing opportunities for women, however, that appeal of the separate college is less significant than the appeal of its general educational program."

Keenly interested in the welfare of the student body, this youthful leader declares that "what the student needs in his course of study depends

"Toward a Greater America" is a challenge to educators throughout the nation. And a woman—President McAfee of Wellesley—has accepted it.

"TOWARD A GREATER AMERICA"—AN ARTIST REPLIES

MARY ELLEN CONFALONE. Valedictorian

A greater America is the aim of all thinkers. Since the thoughts and feelings of a nation are reflected in its literature, this question naturally arises: Is any modern writer shaping the beliefs of a greater America?

The answer is an emphatic Yes.

One creative artist who has contributed much to the greatness of America is the eminent writer, Pearl Buck. She was born in Hillsboro, West Virginia, on June 26, 1892. Her parents were American missionaries whose families lived in Virginia. When she was less than four months old, she was taken to China. Here she learned to speak Chinese before English, although when it came time to read and write, she studied English rather than the difficult Chinese characters. Her mother was her teacher. Among the precepts taught was the idea that beauty lay in words. For the first direct literary influence upon her, we may look to her mother and to her Chinese nurse, the latter a marvelous story-teller.

When Pearl was fifteen, she was sent to a boarding school in Shanghai. A few years later she traveled to Europe and England, and then home to America, where she continued her education at Randolph Macon College in Virginia. At first she did not enjoy going to college. Soon, however, she came to be more interested in her new environment.

At the completion of her college work, she went back to China only to find her mother seriously ill. After her mother had fully recovered, Pearl married a young American and went to live in northern China for nearly five years. During these five years, they watched the nation in revolution, saw the old day defeated, and the new day, struggling and weak, but living, come to birth.

She knew that some time she would write. But for several years she was busy with the care of her home, her children, and her parents, with her strong interest in her husband's researches in Chinese farming, and with her own teaching. As a part of her work as a missionary, she taught English literature in the University of Nanking and in the Southeastern University.

Though there was no time to write, her mind was framing stories. In 1922 she submitted her first manuscript to the Atlantic Monthly. The article was immediately accepted, and its contents interested other editors.

No one has been able to picture so effectively as has Pearl Buck, the old struggle of the Chinese people against the insurmountable difficulties of the Chinese barren soils, the mute and passive acceptance of the innumerable wars of the bandit lords, and the happiness the Chinese find in simple things.

Brought up in surroundings permeated by the spirit and by the persons of the people she depicts, Miss Buck is a true artist in her interpretations of the Chinese. She received her feeling of racial equality quite naturally. Both her grandfathers were living in Virginia directly before the Civil War, but neither would buy nor sell slaves. They dared the hatred and prejudice of their neighbors by paying the same wages to Negroes as to Whites. As she herself says, "Mine is a tradition of racial equality."

Another strong belief of hers is that the Americans should become more intimate with other races and more interested in national problems. Such sentiments are ably expressed by her novels. Her most famous book is The Good Earth. It was acclaimed as a masterpiece by the critics, and for twenty-one months it stood on the American list of "best sellers," a record made up to that time by no other book except Quo Vadis, thirty-five years earlier. Eventually it was awarded the Pulitzer prize.

In November, 1935, Pearl Buck was awarded the Howells Medal. The donor of that medal provided that it should be given every fifth year in recognition of the most distinguished work of American fiction published during that period. This medal was really to honor those who could write convincingly of people whether it be a tragedy or comedy of human life.

Last autumn Pearl Buck received a great surprise. The Swedish Academy awarded her the Annual Nobel Prize in letters—given to the person "who shall have produced in the field of literature the most distinguished work of an idealistic tendency." She is the third American and the first woman to win this great award, Sinclair Lewis and Eugene O'Neil having previously been honored.

What, then, has her career contributed "toward a greater America"? First, she has awakened the interest of her countrymen in people of another land; second, she has broadened the vision of millions of readers; third, she has appealed to the spirit of liberty and fair play so typical of America; fourth, she has presented a new concept of beauty in her distinctive style of writing; fifth, her passionate but just presentation of "plain living and high thinking" has created a desire for the worthwhile in life; finally, her genuine artistry—resulting in the winning of the Nobel Prize—serves as an inspiration for creative effort in America. We speak accurately when we say that "She is the only one of the modern writers who has done so much to further the common understanding of the human heart." Truly she is building "Toward a greater America."

Classmates:

For us this evening is a significant one. We are about to face the world in an age characterized by economic uncertainty. Some are planning to aid in building our country into a greater America by higher study; others are entering occupations and trades in which faithful preparation and hard work will be necessary; still others are undecided as to their future plans. Whatever our goal may be, if we strive to fulfil the precept so beautifully expressed in our motto—"We Can, We Shall, We Will"—, we may be assured that "Toward a greater America" will become not a vision but a glowing reality.

FRESHMAN YEAR 1935-1936

Way back in the fall of 1935, 337 students set out with gay spirits to climb the heights of Wakefield High's curriculum. The foot-hills seemed easy; a few lagged behind, but most of us hastened forward with the hope of brilliant accomplishments ahead. The guides, Mr. Hayes and the rest of the faculty, did a great deal to make the trail easier, encouraging and helping the slower ones and inspiring the others to greater achievements.

When camp was pitched, many of the students participated in sports, such as basketball, football, baseball, and track. An amateur program, sponsored by Miss Bent and Mr. Shellenberger, with Bob MacKenna serving as master of ceremonies, was one of the amusing diversions.

Summer found the victorious freshmen anticipating the adventures of sophomore trail.

SOPHOMORE YEAR 1936-1937

By September, the unknown freshmen had climbed one more lap up the mountain to occupy the place of sophomores.

Three new guides were added to the staff. One of them, Miss Louise Sheldon, became a member of the Wakefield High School Faculty as the new librarian, taking the place of Miss Moore who left to be married. All of us regretted seeing Miss Marjorie Bent leave Wakefield also, but were glad to welcome two new guides, Miss Katherine Nichols and Miss Dorothy Shepard, to the athletic department.

Carolyn Miles and Anita Monge were elected to the Girls' Athletic Council.

The list of the members of the Girls' Glee Club was completed with many sophomores among the 180 singers. Under the direction of Miss Vivian Dix, they sang for the Kosmos Club. In May, the combined glee clubs, under the supervision of the two musical guides, Miss Dix and Mr. Fulton, gave a concert in the high school auditorium.

The Wakefield Track Team won the Mystic Valley track title in February. The players of the team representing the Class of '39 were Leo Bonfanti, Edmont Garbenis, Charles Nutile, Paul Smith, James Ebling.

Awards were presented to Henry Clay, Prescott Harmon, and Robert Peabody for golf.

The Donkey Basketball Game was one of the most interesting and hilarious events in our sophomore year because of the participation of some of our guides. "Joe" Cassano, "Ray" Dower, "Doc" Preble, "Mort" Sherman, and "Bill" Gallop rode, or tried to ride, such noble steeds as "Mussolini," "Kate Smith," "Sally Rand," and "Mr. Ghandi."

After resting for a while during July and August, we then started on the most difficult part of our climb. We elected the following officers:

President—Robert MacKenna Vice President—Adam Herron Secretary—Carolyn Miles Treasurer—Paul Cameron

A class meeting was held for the students to select the class rings, class colors, and class motto. The colors chosen were blue and gold; the motto: "We Can, We Shall, We Will."

Near the last of November, a great interest in hockey arose. Articles were printed in the local newspaper, and a few students showed their enthusiasm by writing letters. Several surrounding schools were supporting hockey teams. Why not Wakefield? Principal Charles J. Peterson agreed to add hockey to the high school athletic program, and one hundred dollars was appropriated to help finance the new sport. Arrangements were made eo enable Coach Shellenberger to coach hockey three days a week. At the end of the year, John Spang, a junior and one of the most competent players, was chosen captain of the next season's team. During this first year, hockey gained as much recognition as baseball, track, and cross country in Wakefield High.

No form of athletics has attracted as much attention as football. The Wakefield Football Team won six games out of the eight played, making the fall of 1937 a successful football season. Wakefield High School earned the rating of fifth place in Class B of Eastern Massachusetts. Seventeen junior students and three junior cheerleaders received football awards.

The combined Glee Clubs presented for the first time a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, Trial by Jury, to the Wakefield public. Among the leading actors appearing in the operetta were several members of our junior class: Albert Doucette, Lillian Thrush, Frances Hadlock, Florence Kellogg, Yolanda Giunta, and Fanny Hovey.

The Junior Prom held on May 14, 1938 drew 175 students for a wonderful evening. The Prom was called an Hawaiian Party, with the "gym" beautifully decorated. Everyone voted the Hawaiian leis given as favors a novel addition to the brilliancy of the tropical coloring of the decorations.

SENIOR YEAR 1938-1939

With the peak in view we started the last lap of our journey as seniors, in September. At first the way was a bit rocky, but after passing the timber line, everyone resumed the steady pace onward.

When the going was easy we decided that it was time to elect our officers, for our goal did not seem far off. Those chosen were:

President—Robert MacKenna Vice President—Adam Herron Secretary—Shirley Crain Treasurer—Howard Murphy

The class officers cooperated with the social guide, Miss Gilmore, who anticipated the gala events that were to occur when we should have reached the summit.

Under the leadership of Miss Nichols, the girls have enjoyed diversified forms of sport. Much interest was shown in tennis, archery, golf, basketball and baseball. All the materials used by the girls in archery were made by the boys in the manual training shops of the high school, under the careful supervision of Mr. Louis Marche, guide of the woodworking department.

The football squad under the guidance of Captain Bob MacKenna and Coach Healey, turned out a very successful team. As a result, the mothers of some of the boys decided to earn enough money so that sweaters could be given to fifteen of the boys of the squad. The boys, with the help of their mothers, conducted a food sale. They also sold Christmas trees. With their earnings they bought the fifteen sweaters.

One morning we assembled in the auditorium and enjoyed watching our head guide, Mr. Peterson, award letters to the football squad and insignia to the cheerleaders. Those from our class who received letters were James Ebling, Tony Coccoro, Adam Herron, Leo Bonfanti, Bob MacKenna, Arthur Vignan, Charles Confalone, and Arthur Calvo. The following cheerleaders received their insignia: Anita Monge, Bernice Bachelder, Elizabeth Cox, Virginia Hatfield, Mary O'Neil, Margaret McLaughlin, Barbara Twitchell, Harry Barron, and Robert Wheeler.

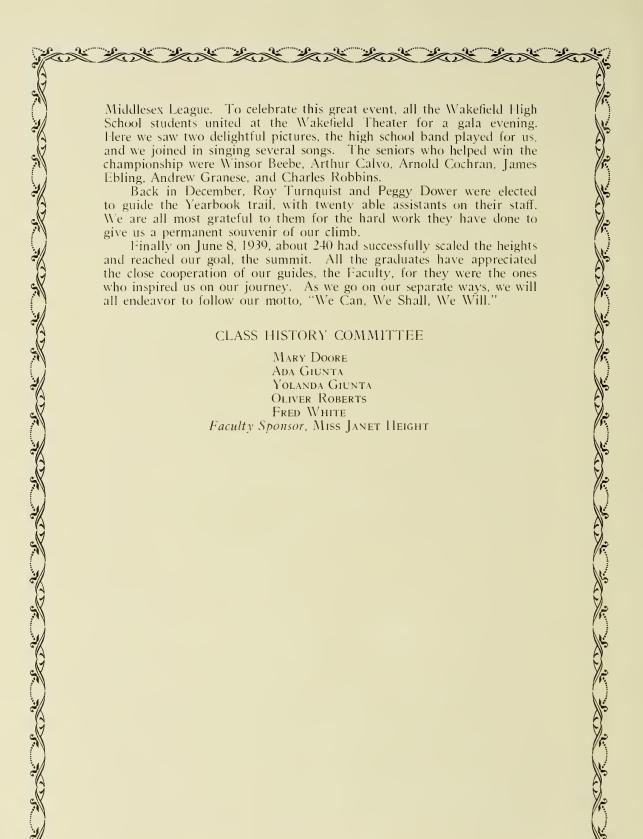

A short while after we continued our climb, William Hogan was elected student representative of the High School Athletic Council. "Bill" was also manager of the Hockey Team.

Finally, December was drawing near, and we thought it was time to choose our senior play cast. The play selected, "Yours Truly Willie," was an amusing comedy, dealing with typical American youth. It was given two nights, with different casts. Those appearing Friday night were George McConville, Joanne Rasmusson, Teresalee Downing, George Antunes, Jr., Roy Turnquist, Shirley Marshall, Margaret Martin, Gardner Campbell, Jr., William Hogan, and Edward Lobacz. On Saturday night the players were Arnold Cochran, Dolly Hill, Jane Hitchings, Webster Jackson, Robert MacKenna, Martha Perkins, Nancy Rutter, Howard Murphy, Lloyd Glidden, William Hogan, Harry Whitford. With all these talented performers, the play was a "smashing hit."

We then continued our journey up the slope into a new year, 1939. From January on, we seniors were striving for both scholastic and athletic achievement, for we knew that in a few more months we would reach the peak.

In spite of the treacherous road conditions, about fifty couples attended the annual party of the high school senior class on February II, 1939. The dance appropriately took the form of a World's Fair party. The "gym" was decorated with blue and orange streamers, and the walls were covered with posters advertising the fair. On the basketball baskets, there were trylon and perisphere to represent the motif of the fair. During the intermission President MacKenna gave a short talk about the fair, explaining the meaning of the two symbols.

The 1939 basketball squad proved a very successful team. They won eleven games out of fifteen and were, therefore, the champions of the

Entire Company

This is a program of fun, Of jibes, and of jokes, and of laughter, It's all about what you may be In '59—twenty years after.

So take a big leap in the dark, Keep your skin as thick as a platter, This is all to be taken in fun, Tell your feelings that they do not matter.

GAZE, GAZE, AND WHAT DO I SEE?

John Knipe

There's Peggy Dower and Jennie Behnke, And giggling Dotty Fanck, They bought a finishing school for girls, And all their money sank.

There's Schefish and Deniso, Who've gone away to sea; But Wormstead and Westover Now build machinery.

Dick Gilbert and his partner, Gene Vandewalle, are still, With Harlan Gillis, working To level off Hart's Hill.

P. Fraughton and F. Cotter Are in the teaching game; And we hear that Edith Christenson Is doing just the same.

Ruth Merritt's on the radio, Announcing all the news; And Pauline Meuse and Kanchuga, Are singers of the blues. The student girls of yesteryear, Roses Lazzaro and Scione We see with A. Zarella, Who are operators of the phone.

I think I'd better stop right now, I think I'm seeing double; Oh no, it's just the LeBlanc twins; They always gave me trouble.

They went into the movies, Along with Georgie Rich; They've got the fans all guessing As to just which one is which.

(Encore)
There's Barbara Carleton looking sad,
She's looking still for Graves.
For he's a churchyard sexton
And seldom misbehaves.

There's Edna Stafford playing ball—She's organized a team; And Dolly Hill and Margaret Hale, Her pitchers, have the steam.

There's Rose Romano over there And with her Mary Quay; They both now own a Paris store, Along with Henry Clay.

DO YOU KNOW WHAT I HEARD?

Marion Mitchell

I'm no gossip; everybody knows that, but I do pick up a little stray information once in a while. Yesterday afternoon, for instance, I met Dorothy Beyea, and what that woman doesn't know about people isn't worth knowing. You know she and Mary McLaughlin are running the Tootsie Wootsie Candy Factory and they hear a lot of news. Yesterday, Dorothy sent Charlie Gates, the office manager, off on some fool errand, and then she opened up.

It seems Joanne Rasmusson had just been in—according to Dot she was too swelled up for words; she had just won the Academy Award for the best motion picture actress in 1958 for her acting in the screen version of Bebs Downing's best seller, "Hot Soup." I don't think she should get all the credit, for Ruth Buchan designed all her gowns and Lloyd Glidden did the directing. All they got were a couple of tin medals for their part.

While I was there, Lillian Thrush called up on the phone, and did she rave about the criticism Lillian Quinn had written in her column, "Music and Pseudo Musicians." It seems that she panned poor Lillian and Edward Lobacz something terrible. These critics do go haywire sometimes; why, Lillian and Edward are tops in the Metropolitan Opera Company, and everybody knows it.

Do you remember that artist, Mary Doore? Well, she is painting a picture of Betty Richardson holding her two prize cats; they are too sweet for words; I don't wonder that they won a prize at the Boston cat show.

When Charlie Gates got back, he was filled up with news; perhaps that's what Dot sent him out for. He said that he had just seen Roy Turnquist riding at the head of a procession—we always knew he'd go places, but little thought he would get the nomination for President of the United States for a third term. I could never get over his putting Herbert Crocker in as Attorney General. And poor Earl Crowell; all he got was keeper of the linen and towels at the White House. Well, that's what he trained for at W. H. S.

Charlie met Lois Bishop; I don't see how he ever got back. She is running a Christmas card store up on Joy Street with Martha Parkins and Shirley Mansfield. It is the cutest little place—Ella Perkins designed it, and Dorothy Hoyt and Leslye Gammons did all the interior work. Those girls all got their training at the Better Homes Institute under Margaret Dinan and Jeannette Borland. The whole student body is now working on a house for Virginia Getchell and Stephen Gardner, who are supposed to be the best dressed couple on the continent.

Well, I'm no gossip, and I decided I had heard enough but Dot had a few more bits for me. You won't believe this, but Mildred Andruss, Gertrude Doucette, and Theresa Paulauskis eloped with three wealthy yatchmen from Marblehead, and after all these years they declare that they are happily married and they'd elope again if they had to do it over.

Just as I was leaving, the swellest man came in, and Dot introduced him as Dean Hopkins. "Where's Elmer?" I asked. "I'm Elmer," he replied. Dean Hopkins of Harvard, indeed. And right there I left.

On my way home, I stopped at the Writers' Club, and there sat Shirley Crain and Mary Petrillo all agog because they had finally found a publisher for their new book, "Wakefield's Town Hall and Other Buildings." Joe Bernabeo has been trying to buy the movie rights, but they won't sell until their lawyer, Richard Wallace, gives his consent to the contract. Just now Joe and Attorney Wallace are having a fine battle.

They've got a new orchestra at the Writers' Club. You could never guess who is directing it. Salvatore Piccolo. Did he blush when he saw me! I hear he lost his job at the Metropolitan because he insisted on singing a solo one evening. There was another has-been in the orchestra. Lawrence Anderson started in as an aviator, but after he had fallen out of a plane a couple of times, he went back to his trombone and there he was playing away.

Oh, I could go on and on. But I'm no gossip, you know.

I CAN FIND OUT

Ruth Quirk

(Presented in dialogue form)

This little machine I have here is a brand new invention—so new that they haven't named it yet. It is all a matter of turning dials and pushing button's and you can get about anything you want—any place, any time, anybody.

Here's a football game between the Cannonball University team of North Saugus and the Winmore College eleven of North Reading; Bob MacKenna is head coach for the Cannonballs. Over there on the fifty-yard line I can see Virginia Hatfield, Lena Pica, and Jane Quigley. Oh yes, I can tell you what they have been doing—you simply turn this dial here and delve into the past. Virginia was elected Queen of the Orange Festival, Jane won the Academy Award for the best address on the "Lux" radio program last year, and Lena spends her time supervising a Home for Stray Cats which she recently endowed.

Now here's something interesting: a program of the National Symphony Orchestra, Mary Smith, conductor. Mary is so short that she stands on a stepladder. Harlan Gould is going to play a trombone solo, and Hattie Parker, world famous pianist, is going over to the piano to accompany him. Now let me turn this back a year. The orchestra is playing for a fashion show. Evelyn Coviello and Gloria Tonks are the models, and they are being gowned and displayed by four nationally known designers, Doris Schlenker, Thelma Simpson, Phyllis Moore and Betty Costello.

Oh dear, I have turned the dial and lost them, but here is something else. Well, this isn't so much—just a bookstore; let me see if I can't get this clearer. Here are a couple of books on the best seller shelf, "Travels in Sweden" by Shirley Brannon, and "Romance with the Royal Mounted Police" by Dorothy Green and Dolly Edgett.

Oh, don't touch that! That turns on the X-ray so that you can see right inside of the object you are looking at. I have never tried it before. Well, there you are; there's the frontispiece of Shirley's book with a foreword by Josephine Meuse, teacher of English in Wakefield College for Women. It's coming clearer; three skiers on Prescott Harmon's famous ski slide, Mildred McCarthy, Greta Maher, and Shirley Marshall; and can they ski! Prescott is presenting them with three dozen gardenias. Why, I can even tell you where those gardenias came from. Yes, from the greenhouse of Betty Cox; Anna Roach named those gardenias the "Leo" gardenias.

Heavens! What was that? There must have been some terrible explosion; let me push my retroactive key again and find out what that was a year ago. The GHG building—a million dollar laboratory built by those three eminent scientists, Norman Glueck, Jean Hartshorne, and Andrew Granese, I guess they performed one too many experiments. Up on the top floor of that building there used to be a solarium. Helen Mohla is sitting there in the sun reading "How to Be Graceful" by Harry Whitford, who is manager of the place. Valjean Mortimer seems to be hostess. Just a minute, I am going back another year; now Mary Whitney is hostess, but she has gone on a tour of the Alps. Mary trained to be a nurse and is on duty here now.

I was afraid of that. Those tubes burn out in about ten minutes. I am sorry, but that is all I can do now until I can see George Antunes. He invented this thing along with William Titus, and you have to get your new tubes from them. They make them fragile to keep the sales up.

TOURING WAKEFIELD'S WORLD'S FAIR Harold Hogan

These are proofs I have just obtained from the Item Press of the descriptive circular for the World's Fair in Wakefield. It is written in the form of a tour, and since I wrote it myself, I think it is pretty clever. If you want to hear it, I'll be glad to read it.

Proceeding north on Main Street in the beautiful, old town of Wakefield, we pass the park and approach the artistic suspension bridge, extending from the shore of the Common out to the man-made island in the middle of Lake Quannapowitt. The beautiful approach to the bridge was designed by John Collins, chief architect for the World's Fair Construction Company, owned and operated by Howard Bezanson.

The gaudy colored buildings, painted by Arnold Cochran and Charles Confalone, immediately catch the eye. Descending from the bridge, the "Ad" Building immediately confronts us and Arthur Beane, the general manager of the Fair, may be seen busily at work with his associates, Harry Barron, Wilfred Godette, and Malcolm Russell.

To the left, we see the Fair Hotel, operated by Gardner Campbell and Winsor Beebe. As you step into the lobby, you hear strains of music coming from the dining room, the orchestra under the direction of Freddy Herbolzheimer, the swing king. On our right, we find the "Little Theater of the Fair" managed by Arthur Dignan and Robert Peabody. Here

Ward." One of the features of the program is Clayton Holoway and his harmonica rendition of Wagner's Tannhauser.

The chief building on the island is directly back of the "Ad" Building. Here are displayed the great scientific discoveries of the past twenty years. On the first floor, we have all the latest floral and horticultural creations. Standing in the foreground is Arthur Calvo displaying his newest type of petunias and nearby Jerome Foley with his new "Foley rose." Toward the rear, we shall meet Bob MacIntosh and David Maher showing off their newly-developed "blue apple".

On the second floor, is the famous hall of science. There, each hour during the day, Joe Grady exhibits his invention which disproves the law of inertia. Just beyond, we find Adam Herron, who displays a recent design of the navy's newest unsinkable craft. To our left, the modernistic trend in gasoline manufacture is being explained by Edward O'Soro.

At the rear of the second floor, Albert Doucette, recently acknowledged as the world's most successful photographer, is demonstrating how to make a camera out of paper and string--so simple that one is amazed at the idea.

Take the elevator up another flight and we stand aghast as we look upon the beautiful Palm Garden Dining Salon. Jimmie Ebling has just acquired this concession from Pat MacKay, who suffered a nervous breakdown trying to please all his customers. Ebling advertises himself to be the sole distributor of "Betty's Home-made Pies." He has recently added a blonde waitress to his staff. Ask for Charlie Nutile if you want real service; he is the head waiter, and if he is busy, try his assistants, Joe Marino or George Morgan.

Now, before indigestion strikes you, folks, make for the tunnel that connects the island to the Quannapowitt Boulevard. It is the clever work of that prince of engineers, Stanley Steeves.

Come again, folks.

COME TO THE FAIR

Ada Jillett

(Presented in dialogue form)

Yesterday I went down to Wakefield's World Fair. All you have heard about it doesn't half do it justice. I have never seen so many people in all my life, and it seemed as if half the Class of 1939 were there.

The very first minute I was inside the gate, I met Virginia Hupprich. who was hurrying on to open up her pop-corn stand. She has finally invented one with only one opening so people cannot reach in and take pop-corn when she isn't looking. She told me that she met Anita Monge last week along with Shirley Plummer. Anita is teaching English in a little country school in Maine, and Shirley is librarian of the new library in Greenwood.

Virginia told me to be sure to see the one-ring circus and I started off for there. There was Shirley Ring, mistress of ceremonies of what she advertises as a "One Ring Circus for Short People." She and Kathryn Cryan are the clowns. Charlie Robbins stands around cracking a whip, while Nora Hurton rides a horse bareback and is a real performer. Rita Johnston does a tightrope act, and Fred White has charge of the side shows. I didn't go into the tent, but I am going next week.

Just as I started down the avenue, Ursula Muse went tripping by; she cannot walk any more as she is demonstrating dance steps down at the Casino along with Richard Boland—the Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire team of this generation. Bernice Sheridan danced herself all out and got a job in the band, Ursula said. You remember Gordon Corbett? He sings with the band twice a day. Ursula said that he was still riding that same old bicycle back and forth to work.

Where did I go next? Oh yes. You know, I think the Benedetto girls have about the swankiest dress shop at the Fair. Lillian sells, and Catherine does the measuring and supervises alterations. Russell Francis was apparently their window dresser, although I don't think he knows too much about it. He had the dress on one of the models wrong way around, but he did not seem to know the difference.

I had just one disappointment. I wanted to have a ride on the new swan boats, but who do you suppose is operating them? Joe Tiberio and Bob Wheeler, all dressed up in their sea scout uniforms. They say that last week when Tony Coccoro went to ride across with his horn to play in the Casino band, he lost his balance and fell in, and those two sea scouts almost let him drown. They finally get him ashore, but he lost his horn. I took no chances.

Right across from the Casino, Priscilla Beebe has the cutest little booth where she autographs her own books. She really has only a corner of the booth, for there is a fellow, John Bagnell, who really owns the place. I never knew him very well, but he told me he was in school with me and that I hadn't changed a bit in twenty years. Yes, he's that kind. Well, he demonstrates the latest garden tools; as a matter of fact, he does the talking and Helen Ambrozik and Bernice Bachelder do the demonstrating.

One of the places Virginia told me not to miss was a beauty shop that William Gibson manages. It seemed to be one of the most popular places at the Fair. It's called a "Beauty Shop for Blondes." Bill's motto is "Once a Blonde, Always a Blonde." Florence Kellogg is managing the place and she certainly was a picture. I saw Benny Komak and Anthony Cincotta in white suits, and I asked Florence what they were supposed to be doing. They run the bleaching machines, Florence confided.

I asked Florence where to eat and she recommended the New Dutchland Farms Restaurant; so I went over there. "Paul von Krubel, Proprietor," over the door. He and Jackie Knipe were standing there greeting all the customers. They certainly are a good advertisement for food; they have both put on so much weight that I did not know them at first. Jack Knipe is the chef. Since Gordon Meuse and Oliver Roberts were the only waiters on duty in the place, the service was terrible.

I came home to get something to eat. I am going down to the Fair again; I haven't half seen it.

Mary Smith

DEAR MARY:

It was very kind of you to invite me to come on for the reception you are giving to some of our classmates. I can't imagine anything finer than an opportunity to see William Collins in the flesh. I never miss one of his pictures; I am still unconvinced about those waves in his hair. I know you always used to insist that they were natural. Of course, you know he married Rita Peterson—she's still his leading lady. Right here in town, we are entertaining a world famous personage also in Eleanor Sullivan who, as a stylist in women's hats, has no equal.

Last night I was frightfully embarrassed when she came into the restaurant with Mary Cambareri and Alice Cottreau. I had on a dowdy old hat, and I slipped out as quietly and quickly as I could.

Wherever they got their money to swagger around I do not know. Mary is a math instructor at Harvard, and Alice is head of an English department somewhere near Boston. They are forever arguing over who has the better job. They both had a new fangled hair-do—I suppose one of Mary Leone's creations. She's been out in India, and I guess she learned more from the natives than she taught them. Anyway, she has come home with a lot of new ideas.

I think it is grand that Warren Weston and Virginia Schulman have finally solved their budgeting problems. Virginia was forever giving talks to women's clubs on "How to Finance," and Warren was forever telling his men friends that he was always broke. But people learn; now they are both writing a book on the subject.

I suppose that people think I might learn by experience, too; you listen in some afternoon at three over Station PDQX and you'll laugh just as a lot of other friends of mine are doing. It's the "Love Bug Hour," and I am supposed to be the last word when it comes to handling that dangerous insect.

My regards to all the old crowd. I'll get there if I can make it.

Sincerely yours,

Sylvia Gersinovitcii

DEAR MARY:

Summer is almost here. My sister, Yolanda, and I will be at home next month. Both of us like our work here but will be glad to get away from school for a few weeks.

We have been pretty successful; we have over three hundred students now in our language school. We teach all the languages but go in for French in a big way.

Poor Yolanda lost a month this winter in the hospital. She was fortunate not to lose more time. Ruth Joyce and Eleanor Butler are nurses there, and they gave her a lot of extra attention. The hospital is known by four initials—W. K. E. Q. and nobody knows what the initials stand for. The nurses say that they mean We Kill 'Em Quick. Yolanda survived.

Last summer we went to Europe and almost decided to go again this year. Do you remember that quiet boy, Edward Garbenis? He has just constructed a new airship that is the fastest on record. He offered to take us over on a trial trip. Katherine Foster is the hostess, stewardess, and co-pilot.

Sincerely,
ADA GIUNTA

DEAR MARY:

What a letter writer you are. I cannot keep up with you. Your letters are always full of news.

So Catherine Collins has at last gone to Kentucky. The last time I saw her she was all pepped up about doing missionary work among the mountaineers. I hope she won't lose her heart.

Yes, I saw Helen Hatch and Warren North up here in a carnival this winter. You can well believe that they are champion ski-jumpers—they were simply wonderful.

Now I have some news for you! Mary Confalone and Serena Corindia are out here in Wyoming at the head of a newly-formed girls' college.

As for me, I am going to New York next month. Catherine Stamegna, Alice Cheever, Helen Farrington, and I sail with the girls scouts on their annual cruise. Can you imagine chaperoning a whole boat load of girls?

Tommy Freeman was captain of the boat we sailed on last year. He is as smooth as ever, and we are hoping he'll be with us again.

As ever,

BARBARA LOUISE JOHNSON

DEAR MARY:

Just a note to thank you for your kind letter and to tell you that we are delighted that you are coming on to Hollywood to see us. Ruth Quirk and I have an apartment, and shall be glad to entertain you. Neither of us is working at present but, like Macawber, expecting something to turn up soon. We have had try-outs for important parts in "Yankee Clipper," the story that Millicent Peabody is screening of her trip around the world.

You inquired for Howard Murphy. He is still here in Hollywood painting scenery; he does all the really big jobs. I'm warning you—he won't know you; he cuts us all dead.

Priscilla Bourdon is working in our studio. She is an expert in color photography. You'll like Priscilla; she hasn't gone high-hat—not yet.

Let me know when you have a date set for your trip. We'll close the studio and meet you at the train.

Sincerely,
Marguerite Cronin

A REVUE OF REVUES

Norman Burwen

WHEN THE WENT TO THE WAR TO THE W

I don't think this show is so hot. There isn't a thing I can't duplicate. Why, take this poetry stuff of Jack's. Let me take that glass and I'll do some gazing for you.

There's Margaret Martin, all in red, And with her, Clifford Peck; They say that at their peanut stand They seldom cash a check.

And this "you-know-what-l-heard" stuff. That's a snap for me. Now I'm no gossip; you know that (1 hope). I was just in Dave Taunton's barber shop, and if you think a candy store proprietor can talk, you've just never been in his barber shop. Dave was shaving Norman Brown while he carefully perused a late edition of "Fishing News." You know Norm owns two fishing schooners which are due back from the banks anytime now.

Leo Bonfanti was kidding him along as usual. Leo certainly has made money in his Victrola store. He had his combination automobile and sea-plane parked outside all ready to take off as soon as the semi-annual hair cut was over.

Just as I was ready to leave, who should walk in but Nancy Rutter for a bottle of hair tonic. She said she had just returned from a three-year trip on the Yankee and when she rushed up to Tammany Hall to see Bill Hogan, she found poor "Snow White" had gone almost completely bald. He blamed it all to worries over his work as an auditor.

But I'm no gossip, you know, and I walked right out.

As for that card index business—if I didn't keep a more accurate file than Brad does, I know my business would fold up. I'm always adding to my list; here are a few cards I happen to have with me.

Robert Puglisi. Street superintendent for the American Airway Federation. It's Bob's job to get traffic lights up in the air to prevent collisions.

Bradford Powell. Famous for his new pancake formula which has completely taken the place of Aunt Jemima's.

Ada Jillett. National census taker who has just published the statement that there are 2,526,324½ bald headed men in the United States today.

And that's that.

That is a very interesting little machine Ruth has there, but I have a little pocket television set here that will do almost as much. It's just a matter of turning a dial and there you are.

Now in just a minute I'll get you something. Here's Station WXGW, a television station down on the Cape. That's the one Wilhelmina Banks announces for. My word! Frances Hadlock is giving her talk "How Short Girls Can Look Tall." Some ad for high heels, probably. That's funny; there's Jimmy Morris waiting over near the microphone. Maybe he's trying to look tall. Oh, I see; he's the operator on duty.

Now I'll turn to port a little and here we are on the Supertania, the largest Atlantic air-liner. I can see a boy and girl strolling along the deck; just as I thought—Paul and Thelma. They are on their second honeymoon; they plan to take one every few years. The wind seems to be blowing a gale. Oh, there's Yolanda Roberto chasing her cap across the deck. She is the stewardess, at least that is what the cap says.

I'm burning out no tubes.

Now, I'm no advertising genius, but if I were to write a circular about the World's Fair I should not leave out so many important things. Harold, you missed a lot.

Not a word about tickets! That bridge, folks, out to the middle of Lake Quannapowitt is a toll bridge. Twenty-five cents to get over to the Fair and a dollar to get back. There at the entrance, we see William Hill, who takes your ticket. He is a most efficient official. But what takes my eye is the girl at the ticket window, Barbara Woodbury. Why a pretty girl like her got left these twenty years, I cannot see. They say she owns half the Fair and is selling tickets to keep her eye on the cash.

And not a word from either of them about the bathing beach.

Dorothy Meuse and Lillian Ouinn are the life-sayers on duty. They are Dorothy Meuse and Lillian Quinn are the life-savers on duty. They are both expert divers, and when they are not busy saving lives, they dive for coins. I lost a half dollar that way.

When I was down there last week, I saw Ethel Lawrence in her new gasolineless car. That's not so good for business, but it's quite a contraption. She married the inventor and now is demonstrating the car. Oh, it's a great Fair.

I don't read my personal mail to the public, but here is a strictly business letter I had this morning:

DEAR MR. BURWEN:

I am writing to find out if you're the same fellow I knew in high school. If you are, I can use you.

Could you find a place in your office for a couple of girls who are badly in need of employment? Perhaps you will remember Phyllis Holoway and Emily Peterson. They have just returned to United States after spending a year and all their money doing research work in Finland.

I am sure that in your large and successful business, you can find a place for them. Thank you.

Affectionately yours,

MARION MITCHELL

P. S. If you are not the Norman Burwen I think you are, change the "Affectionately yours" to "Respectfully yours."

I think you have the wrong fellow, Marion. I am all through hiring classmates. I hired Mary Hitchings last year, and she up and married the assistant treasurer. Now they have bought out a rival concern and I am losing business every day, and as my old friend, Lowell Thomas used to say "So long, until tomorrow."

Y OU and your friends will prize the portrait that looks like you—your truest self, free from stage effects and little conceits.

It is in this "long run" photography that PURDY success has been won.

Portraiture by the camera that one cannot laugh at or cry over in later years.

For present pleasure and future pride protect your photographic self by having PURDY make the portraits.
